*This seminar has been approved by PA CLE
Board for 1 hour substantive law credit.*

A split-decision was rendered by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in what is known as The Slomski Case, reversing the Superior Court in a matter that dealt with beneficiaries' powers, gifting rights and durable powers of attorney.

At issue was the power of the agent to change the beneficiary designation of a qualified retirement plan owned by the principal.

Attend this very important program and hear from several of the attorneys involved in arguing this critical case. Are the powers of attorney you are drafting accurate under the new ruling?

CORRINE BREON

DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE / AUTHORITY TO STOP

Agents of the United States Border Patrol do not have the authority to seize Commonwealth citizens for traffic offenses or misdemeanor crimes.

*DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE /
IMPERMISSIBLE STATE ACTION*

The Court must look at all circumstances to determine whether that individual's conduct 1.) could fairly be attributed to the State and 2.) whether that individual must be regarded as having acted as an instrument of the state.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / EXCLUSIONARY RULE

When the unlawful actions of an individual are deemed to be state action, the exclusionary rule applies and any evidence obtained as a result of those actions must be suppressed.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF ERIE COUNTY,
PENNSYLVANIA CRIMINAL DIVISION No. 1440-2010

Appearances: Roger M. Bauer, Esq. for the Commonwealth
Stephen E. Sebald, Esq. for the Defendant

OPINION

Garhart, J., January 6, 2011

A. BACKGROUND

Ms. Breon is charged with DUI - Highest Rate¹, and Reckless Driving². We are here on her Omnibus Pre-Trial Motion, wherein she argues that evidence must be suppressed as it was obtained as the result of an illegal stop. A hearing was held on December 14, 2010.

B. FINDINGS OF FACT

On January 16, 2010, U.S. Border Patrol Agent Gregory was driving eastbound on West 8th Street, in Erie, Pennsylvania, when a westbound vehicle, driven by Ms. Breon, crossed the centerline and forced Agent Gregory off the road. Without turning on his patrol vehicle's flashing lights, Agent Gregory turned around and followed Ms. Breon. After a period of time, Ms. Breon left the roadway and pulled into a random driveway. Still following, Agent Gregory pulled in behind Ms. Breon, turned on his flashing lights, and ordered Ms. Breon to stay in her vehicle. For reasons unknown, Ms. Breon's vehicle slowly coasted backwards and came to a rest on Agent Gregory's vehicle. At this time, Ms. Breon's egress from the driveway was totally impeded by Agent Gregory, who admitted that Ms. Breon was not free to leave the scene.

After calling the City of Erie Police Department ("EPD"), Agent Gregory, clothed in a full Border Patrol uniform approached Ms. Breon, who was still in her vehicle. Agent Gregory observed that Ms. Breon's speech was incoherent, and that she smelled like alcohol. Within 10 minutes of placing the call, EPD's Sgt. Nolan arrived on the scene. After failing Sgt. Nolan's field sobriety tests, Ms. Breon was arrested and taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where it was reported her blood-alcohol-content ("BAC") was .259.

Finally, as an agent of the United States Border Patrol, Agent Gregory is charged with preventing aliens from entering the United States illegally, as well as preventing the entry of weapons of mass destruction. By his own admission, Agent Gregory has not received any training on conducting DUI stops.

C. DISCUSSION

In support of her Motion to Suppress, Ms. Breon argues that agents of the U.S. Border Patrol do not have the authority to conduct traffic stops of citizens of Pennsylvania for suspected DUI. Further, but for this illegal interference, Ms. Breon's interaction with Erie Police would never have happened.

In Commonwealth v. Price, 672 A.2d 280 (Pa. 1996), an FBI agent observed the defendant ignore a stop sign and swerve into the oncoming lane, nearly hitting the agent's vehicle. Id. at 281. The agent followed the defendant, activated his lights and siren, and eventually stopped the defendant's vehicle. Id. Upon approaching the defendant and identifying himself as an FBI agent, the agent smelled alcohol emanating from the defendant. Id. In response, the agent asked a bystander to call the local police. Id. The agent then told the defendant not to move and to remain seated in the vehicle,³ Id. Soon after, the local police arrived, received the agent's written report, and then arrested the defendant and charged him with DUI. Id.

Prior to trial, the Price defendant's motion to suppress was denied, and he was ultimately convicted. Id. On appeal, the Superior Court reversed, concluding that because the arrest by the agent was illegal, the subsequent arrest by the local police was tainted. Id. The Superior Court further held that the exclusionary rule was applicable and required all evidence obtained as a result of the illegal arrest to be suppressed. Id.

In affirming the Superior Court, the Supreme Court first took up the issue of whether the agent's conduct constituted a permissible citizen's arrest⁴ or whether such conduct classified as 'state action.' Citing Lugar v. Edmondson Oil Co., Inc., 457 U.S. 922 (1982)⁵ and Commonwealth v. Corley, 491 A.2d 829 (Pa. 1985)⁶, the Court held that the agent's conduct could fairly be attributed to the state, and that the agent must be regarded as an instrument of the state when he stopped the defendant. Price, 672 A.2d at 284. The Court specifically noted the agent's use of the lights and sirens on his unmarked government vehicle, together with the displaying of his badge, was determinative of their conclusion that the case involved state action. Id. The Court further stated that the agent's "obvious display of authority...imbued his actions with an official aura" and that no subsequent action could erase the taint of the agent's conduct⁷. Id.

Finally, in finding the exclusionary rule applicable, the Court, again citing its prior decision in Corley, enunciated the following standard:

[W]here the unlawful actions of the individual are deemed to be state action, the exclusionary rule applies and any evidence obtained as a result of those actions must be suppressed. The good or bad faith of the individual acting under color of state authority is simply irrelevant. This is so since the Fourth Amendment operates where, as here, there exists a relationship between a citizen and the state. In other words, since [defendant] was unlawfully arrested by [the agent] whom, as determined herein was acting as an "instrument of the state," the requisite relationship between [defendant] and the state here exists so as to invoke the protections of Fourth Amendment. This is the same under Article I, Section 8 of our Pennsylvania Constitution.

Price, 672 A.2d at 284.

The parties agree, and a review of state and federal law shows, that agents of the United States Border Patrol do not have the authority to seize Commonwealth citizens for traffic offenses or misdemeanor crimes. See 8 U.S.C.A. § 1357. The Commonwealth contends that the instant matter

⁴ The Court stated that the agent was not authorized to effectuate arrests for traffic offenses or misdemeanors. Price, 672 A.2d at 282. Rather, he was only authorized to make warrantless arrests where he had reasonable grounds to believe that the person had committed or was committing any felony cognizable under the laws of the United States. Id. Citing 18 U.S.C. § 3052.

is distinguishable from Price, in that Agent Gregory did not effectuate a traffic stop, per se. That is to say, Agent Gregory did not turn on his lights while in pursuit and then immediately order Ms. Breon to the side of the road. Here, Ms. Breon pulled into another's driveway of her own free will. The Commonwealth further argues that Sgt. Nolan's actions in arriving on the scene and performing the field sobriety tests, as well as his own personal observations, provided a basis for his arrest that was independent of any possible illegal action on the part of Agent Gregory.

The Court disagrees with both of the Commonwealth's arguments. First, although Agent Gregory did not initiate a traffic stop in the customary sense, his actions rose to the level of a Fourth Amendment "seizure" of Ms. Breon's person when he: 1) pulled in behind her vehicle, 2) activated the lights on his patrol vehicle, 3) ordered Ms. Breon to stay in her car, and 4) questioned her in full uniform. Applying the principles in Corley and Price, it is clear that Agent Gregory displayed conduct which can fairly be attributable to the state and that Agent Gregory must be regarded as having acted as an instrument or agent of the state. As in Price, it simply cannot be denied that Agent Gregory's obvious display of authority in seizing Ms. Breon imbued his actions with an official aura.

Based on Corley and Price, a finding that unlawful actions of an individual rise to the level of state actions compels this Court to find the exclusionary rule applies to suppress any evidence obtained as a result of those unlawful actions. The Commonwealth's argument suggests that the evidence obtained by Sgt. Nolan did not result from Agent Gregory's illegal state action, but from Sgt. Nolan's independent investigation. However, it was Agent Gregory who unlawfully seized Ms. Breon and prevented her from leaving the scene until EPD arrived. As such, common sense dictates that the evidence was obtained as a result of Agent Gregory's actions, and therefore must be suppressed.

D. CONCLUSION

As Agent Gregory's illegal seizure of Ms. Breon's person is considered a state action, and as the exclusionary rule applies, Defendant's Motion to Suppress is GRANTED, and any and all evidence obtained by the EPD as a result of that illegal seizure is SUPPRESSED. An Order to this effect follows this Opinion.

In closing, the Court would like to take the opportunity to note that it finds Agent Gregory acted in good faith. He was nearly hit by Ms. Breon and was clearly concerned, not only with her welfare, but that of the other citizens of this Commonwealth. He acted both reasonably and responsibly, but since he is not authorized to enforce Pennsylvania law as it relates to misdemeanors, and since his actions in uniform are unavoidably cloaked with state action, the evidence gathered must be suppressed.

ORDER

AND NOW, this 6th day of January 2011, upon consideration of Defendant's Motion to Suppress, and after having held an evidentiary hearing, it is hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that Defendant's Motion is GRANTED, and any and all evidence obtained by the Erie Police Department as a result of the U.S. Border Patrol's illegal seizure of Defendant is SUPPRESSED.
