COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

v.

DWAYNE GOLSTON

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SUPPRESSION OF EVIDENCE / BURDEN OF PROOF

Pennsylvania Rule of Criminal Procedure 581 governs the suppression of evidence. Pursuant to Rule 581, the Commonwealth, not the defendant, shall have the burden of going forward with the evidence and of establishing that the challenged evidence was not obtained in violation of the defendant's rights. The Commonwealth's burden is by a preponderance of the evidence and has been defined as "the burden of producing satisfactory evidence of a particular fact in issue and the burden of persuading the trier of fact that the fact alleged is indeed true."

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / STANDING

Any defendant charged with a possessory crime has automatic standing to challenge a search and seizure under Article I, §8 of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / SEIZURE OF PERSONS

Under current constitutional jurisprudence, there are three categories of interactions between police officers and citizens. The first is a mere encounter (or request for information), which need not be supported by any level of suspicion, but carries no official compulsion to stop or to respond. The second, an investigative detention, must be supported by reasonable suspicion; said detention subjects a suspect to a stop and a period of detention, but does not involve such coercive conditions as to constitute the functional equivalent of an arrest. Finally, an arrest or custodial detention must be supported by probable cause.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / INVESTIGATIVE DETENTION / REASONABLE SUSPICION

To establish grounds for reasonable suspicion, the police officer must articulate specific observations which, in conjunction with reasonable inferences derived from these observations, led him reasonably to conclude, in light of his experience, that criminal activity was afoot and the person he stopped was involved in that activity.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / INVESTIGATIVE DETENTION / REASONABLE SUSPICION

In order to determine whether the police officer had reasonable suspicion, the totality of the circumstances must be considered. The totality of the circumstances test does not limit a trial court's inquiry to an examination of only those facts that clearly indicate criminal conduct; rather, even a combination of innocent facts, when taken together, may warrant further investigation by the police officer.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / CUSTODIAL DETENTION / PROBABLE CAUSE

To determine whether probable cause exists, a trial court must consider "whether the facts and circumstances which are within the knowledge of the police officer at the time of the arrest, and of which he has reasonably trustworthy information, are sufficient to warrant a man of reasonable caution in the belief that the suspect has committed or is committing a crime.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE / SEARCH & SEIZURE / CUSTODIAL DETENTION / PROBABLE CAUSE

When a trial court examines a particular situation to determine if probable cause exists, a trial court must consider the totality of the circumstances, and should not concentrate on each individual element. Probable cause does not involve certainties, but rather the factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent men act.

No. CR 2218 - 2016

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Domitrovich, J., January 11th, 2017

After thorough consideration of the entire record regarding Defendant's Omnibus Pre-trial Motion, including, but not limited to, the testimony and evidence presented during the December 20th, 2016 Suppression Hearing, as well as an independent review of the relevant statutory and case law, this Trial Court hereby makes the following Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law:

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. At or around 10:30 a.m. on June 15th, 2016, Patrolman Kyle Caldwell of the Millcreek Police Department, in full dress uniform and in a marked patrol vehicle, was dispatched to the Erie Bank, located at 2035 Edinboro Road, Erie, Pennsylvania 16509, due to "suspicious activity."
2. After arriving at the Erie Bank, Patrolman Caldwell made contact with Erie Bank staff, who indicated a black male, wearing a tan sports coat and a derby style hat, attempted to cash eight thousand dollar and 00/100 ($8,000.00) in savings bonds.
3. This black male attempted to cash the savings bonds using an identification card that could not be verified by Erie Bank staff, and the transaction was refused.
4. Erie Bank staff indicated to Patrolman Caldwell that this same black male had attempted to cash these savings bonds at Erie Bank one (1) week prior.
5. Erie Bank staff informed Patrolman Caldwell that, after the transaction was refused, the black male left Erie Bank and traveled west across Edinboro Road.
6. Patrolman Caldwell, based upon his own personal knowledge that another bank, i.e. PNC Bank, located at 2069 Interchange Road, Erie, Pennsylvania 16509, was in close proximity to the west of Erie Bank, traveled to PNC Bank looking for the black male.
7. Upon arriving at PNC Bank, Patrolman Caldwell looked through PNC Bank's front windows and observed an individual matching the description of Erie Bank staff, i.e. a black male wearing a tan sports coat and a derby style hat.
8. After making this observation, Patrolman Caldwell entered PNC Bank, approached the black male and asked for his identification, which the black male provided voluntarily.

9. During the encounter with this black male, Patrolman Caldwell did not draw his firearm, Patrolman Caldwell did not tell the black male he was not free to leave, and the black male did not ask Patrolman Caldwell if he was free to leave at any point.
10. The black male provided an identification card to Patrolman Caldwell listing the name “Andrew J. Peele,” with a birth date of December 16th, 1934 and a license number of RT546671. This Trial Court notes that this black male initially identified himself as “Andrew J. Peele.”
11. Patrolman Caldwell radioed the dispatch officer with the license number RT546671, which was verified as belonging to a white female in Lyndhurst, Ohio.
12. Patrolman Caldwell then radioed the dispatch officer with the listed name “Andrew J. Peele” and the date of birth, both of which could not be verified by the dispatch officer.
13. Patrolman Caldwell questioned the black male about the savings bonds, after which the black male provided one (1) of the savings bonds voluntarily.
14. The savings bond provided by the black male listed the name “Andrew J. Peele” with an address in Tucson, Arizona.
15. Patrolman Caldwell radioed the dispatch officer with the information listed on the savings bond, which was verified as belonging to “Andrew J. Peele,” an elderly white male living in Tucson, Arizona.
16. Patrolman Caldwell questioned this black male as to his identity, after which the black male now identified himself voluntarily as Dwayne Golston and indicated voluntarily that he found the eight (8) savings bonds on top of a urinal in a White Castle restaurant in Chicago, Illinois.
17. Thereafter, Patrolman Caldwell placed Defendant under arrest.
18. On August 5th, 2016, the District Attorney’s Office filed a Criminal Information, charging Defendant with Forgery (18 Pa. C. S. §4101(a)(2)); Access Device Fraud (18 Pa. C. S. §4106(a)(1)(ii)); Receiving Stolen Property (18 Pa. C. S. §3925(a)); Identity Theft (18 Pa. C. S. §4120(a)); and Possessing Instruments of Crime (18 Pa. C. S. §907(a)).
19. On October 28th, 2016, Defendant, by and through Attorney Checque, Esq., filed an Omnibus Pre-trial Motion.
20. A hearing on Defendant’s Motion to Suppress was held on December 20th, 2016, during which this Trial Court heard testimony from Patrolman Kyle Caldwell and heard argument from both counsel. Defendant appeared and was represented by his counsel, Jason A. Checque, Esq., and Assistant District Attorney Jared M. Trent appeared on behalf of the Commonwealth.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pennsylvania Rule of Criminal Procedure 581 governs the suppression of evidence. Pursuant to Rule 581, the Commonwealth, not the defendant, shall have the burden of going forward with the evidence and of establishing that the challenged evidence was not obtained in violation of the defendant’s rights. See Pa. R. Crim. P. 581(h). The Commonwealth’s burden is by a preponderance of the evidence. Commonwealth v. Bonasorte, 486 A.2d 1361, 1368 (Pa. Super. 1984); see also Commonwealth v. Jury, 636 A.2d 164, 169 (Pa. Super. 1993) (the Commonwealth’s burden of proof at suppression hearing has been defined as “the burden of producing satisfactory evidence of a particular fact in issue; and . . . the burden of persuading the trier of fact that the fact alleged is indeed true.”).

1. Patrolman Kyle Caldwell possessed sufficient reasonable suspicion to initiate an investigative detention of Defendant Dwayne Golston and developed sufficient probable cause to place Defendant under arrest, based upon the totality of the circumstances.¹

Under current United States and Pennsylvania constitutional jurisprudence, there are three (3) categories of interactions between police officers and citizens. The first is a “mere encounter” (or request for information), which need not be supported by any level of suspicion, but carries no official compulsion to stop or to respond. Commonwealth v. Roberts, 133 A.3d 759, 771 (Pa. Super 2016). The second, an “investigative detention,” must be supported by reasonable suspicion; said detention subjects a suspect to a stop and a period of detention, but does not involve such coercive conditions as to constitute the functional equivalent of an arrest. See id. Finally, an arrest or “custodial detention” must be supported by probable cause. Id.

First, Patrolman Caldwell’s investigative detention of Defendant at PNC Bank was properly supported by sufficient reasonable suspicion. “To establish grounds for ‘reasonable suspicion’... the police officer must articulate specific observations which, in conjunction with reasonable inferences derived from these observations, led him reasonably to conclude, in light of his experience, that criminal activity was afoot and the person he stopped was involved in that activity.” See Commonwealth v. Fulton, 921 A.2d 1239, 1243 (Pa. Super. 2007) (quoting Commonwealth v. Little, 903 A.2d 1269, 1272 (Pa. Super. 2006)). In order to determine whether the police officer had reasonable suspicion, the totality of the circumstances must be considered. See Roberts at 771. The totality of the circumstances test does not limit a trial court’s inquiry to an examination of only those facts that clearly indicate criminal conduct; rather, even a combination of innocent facts, when taken together, may warrant further investigation by the police officer. See id. [emphasis added].

Patrolman Caldwell has worked for the Millcreek Police Department for nine (9) years and has investigated numerous allegations similar to the allegations presented in the instant criminal case. Upon arriving at Erie Bank, bank staff informed him an individual was attempting to cash eight thousand dollars and 00/100 ($8,000.00) in savings bonds with an identification card which could not be verified and “looked suspicious.” Erie Bank staff also provided Patrolman Caldwell with a description of the individual – a black male with a tan sports coat and a derby style hat. Patrolman Caldwell acknowledged based on his experience investigating similar allegations, he would proceed to another bank, and the PNC Bank located on Interchange Road was in close proximity to Erie Bank to the west. Upon arriving at PNC Bank, Patrolman Caldwell looked through the front windows and observed a black male with a tan sports coat and a derby style hat. These initial facts provided to Patrolman Caldwell, although innocent, clearly warranted further investigation by Patrolman Caldwell. See id.

Thereafter, Patrolman Caldwell initiated an encounter with the black male, later identified as Defendant Dwayne Golston, and asked Defendant for identification, which Defendant provided voluntarily. After examining the identification card, Patrolman Caldwell requested verification of the license number “RT546671” from the Millcreek Police Department dispatch officer, who verified said license number belonged to a white female from Lyndhurst, Ohio. Patrolman Caldwell then requested verification of the listed name, “Andrew J. Peele,” and the date of birth, both of which could not be verified. After Patrolman Caldwell questioned Defendant about the savings bonds, Defendant provided one (1) of the savings bonds voluntarily. Patrolman Caldwell requested verification of the name listed on the savings bond, “Andrew J. Peele,” and the Tucson, Arizona address on the savings bond. The dispatch officer verified the individual named “Andrew J. Peele” was an elderly white male who lives at the Tucson, Arizona address. After Patrolman Caldwell questioned Defendant regarding his identity, Defendant identified himself voluntarily as Dwayne Golston and indicated voluntarily that he found the savings bonds on top of a urinal in a White Castle restaurant in Chicago, Illinois. Based upon the totality of the facts set forth above, coupled with Patrolman Caldwell’s experience investigating similar allegations, this Trial Court concludes Patrolman Caldwell had sufficient reasonable suspicion to detain Defendant in order to investigate possible criminal activity by Defendant. See Commonwealth v. Williams, 73 A.3d 609 (Pa. Super. 2013) (reasonable suspicion was found where police officer had thirteen (13) years’ experience investigating criminal offenses committed by pickpockets, had prior contact with the suspect on numerous occasions in connection with forgery and theft offenses, the suspect lied in response to the officer’s inquiry regarding what the suspect was doing, and the suspect provided the officer with a false name).

Furthermore, Patrolman Caldwell’s arrest of Defendant was properly supported by sufficient probable cause. To determine whether probable cause exists, a trial court must consider “whether the facts and circumstances which are within the knowledge of the police officer at the time of the arrest, and of which he has reasonably trustworthy information, are sufficient to warrant a man of reasonable caution in the belief that the suspect has committed or is committing a crime.” See Commonwealth v. Ibrahim, 127 A.3d 819, 824 (Pa. Super. 2015) (quoting Commonwealth v. Rodriques, 585 A.2d 988, 990 (Pa. 1991)). When a trial court examines a particular situation to determine if probable cause exists, a trial court must consider the totality of the circumstances, and should not concentrate on each individual element. See Commonwealth v. Wright, 867 A.2d 1265, 1268 (Pa. Super. 2005). “Probable cause does not involve certainties, but rather ‘the factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent men act.’” See id (quoting Commonwealth v. Romero, 673 A.2d 374, 376 (Pa. Super. 1996)).

During his encounter with Patrolman Caldwell, Defendant provided Patrolman Caldwell voluntarily with an identification card. Patrolman Caldwell attempted to verify Defendant’s identity using various pieces of information listed on this identification card, including the name, birth date and license number; however, the license number was verified as belonging to a white female in Lyndhurst, Ohio, while the name and birth date could not be verified. After further questioning from Patrolman Caldwell regarding the savings bonds, Defendant provided one (1) of the savings bonds voluntarily. Patrolman Caldwell then attempted to verify Defendant’s identity using pieces of information on the savings bond, including the name and address. The Millcreek Police Department dispatch officer verified the listed name of “Andrew J. Peele” as belonging to an elderly white male living at the Tucson, Arizona address listed on the savings bond. Thereafter, Defendant identified himself voluntarily as “Dwayne Golston” and discussed voluntarily how he came to possessing of eight (8) one thousand dollar and 00/100 ($1,000.00) savings bonds. Based upon (1) Defendant’s possession of a fraudulent identification card and the eight [8] savings bonds, which were the basis for the allegations made by Erie Bank staff; (2) Patrolman Caldwell’s initial inability to verify Defendant’s identity; (3) Defendant’s voluntary statements made at the scene; and (4) Patrolman Caldwell’s experience investigating similar allegations, this Trial Court concludes Patrolman Caldwell had sufficient probable cause to arrest Defendant for the crimes charged in the Criminal Information.

For all of the foregoing reasons, this Court enters the following Order:

ORDER

AND NOW, to wit, this 11th day of January, 2017, after thorough consideration of the entire record regarding Defendant’s Omnibus Pre-trial Motion, including, but not limited to, the testimony presented during the November 22nd, 2016 Suppression Hearing, as well as an independent review of the relevant statutory and case law, and the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law set forth above pursuant to Pennsylvania Rule of Criminal Procedure 581, it is hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that Defendant’s Omnibus Pre-trial Motion is hereby DENIED.
