When it isn’t better late than never: ALJ reins in on redesigns first disclosed in the last week of fact discovery - Levelling the playing field in ITC patent cases by identifying redesigns to a set deadline, IAM article commented on best practices for ITC complainants to protect their interests against the nascent uptick of redesign submissions at the tail end of fact discovery. Although reasonable minds can differ as to whether the uptick in motion practice is coincidence or a more troubling sign that some respondents are using late redesign disclosures as a vehicle to put complainants at a disadvantage in fast-paced Section 337 proceedings, such late disclosures undoubtedly prejudice complainants’ ability to fully review and assess such disclosures for possible infringement. U.S. Senate panel to vote on ‘venue’ bill - The U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee is scheduled to vote on September 23 on a bill that would allow state attorneys general to choose which court they bring antitrust cases. Bills to assure that attorneys general can choose their venue were filed after Google asked that Texas’ antitrust lawsuit against it to be moved to California. In August, it was moved to the Southern District of New York, where other similar cases were being heard. A companion measure in the U.S. House of Representatives has passed out of committee but has not been considered by the full House.
