WEEKLY WRAP-UP

December 3, 2021

Sugar and spice - The DOJ's push to block a merger of sugar behemoths in Delaware federal court is a must-watch antitrust case, if you're into that sort of thing. Carl Hittinger, a partner who heads the antitrust practice group at Baker & Hostetler in Philadelphia, told Law.com's Michael A. Mora that the government's lawsuit to stop the United States Sugar Corp. from acquiring its rival, Imperial Sugar Co., is going to turn on the issue of market definition. "This case may be one of the major cases going forward on how you define relevant market even further," said Hittinger, who does not represent either party in the litigation. "I don't see a judge looking at this and saying, 'I know that they're sugar substitutes, so I don't think this complaint is valid.'" The DOJ alleged that the merger of U.S. Sugar and Imperial Sugar announced in March, would violate Section 7 of the Clayton Act, thereby leaving most refined sugar sales in the Southeastern part of the country in the surviving entity from the merger, according to the lawsuit. As a result, the DOJ has predicted the merger would lead to higher prices for American businesses and consumers to buy refined sugar for use in foods and beverages. The government has also pushed back against the argument that customers, including manufacturers, could easily switch to other types of sweeteners if refined sugar prices rose too high.

Driver injured in collision with fortified mailbox can't sue owners, top Ohio court says - Adjacent landowners owe no duty of care to a driver whose pickup truck hit a patch of black ice, veered off the road and hit their fortified mailbox in the right of way, the Ohio Supreme Court has ruled in a 5-2 decision. The driver had argued that a landowner owes a duty of care to drivers who strike a hazard in the right of way if the landowner consciously created the hazard with knowledge of the possible danger to motorists who leave the road. Pa. Supreme Court says that 1967 venue rules pertaining to defamation suits hold up, even in the Internet age - The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has unanimously ruled that venue standards for defamation established more than half a century ago continue to hold up, despite the quantum leaps of technological change which have taken place during that time. An understandable guide to zero trust architecture - While cybersecurity professionals are generally nice people, they have trust issues. Their spouse, friends, and family may not appreciate the lack of trust, but it goes a long way towards protecting the systems entrusted to them. Cybersecurity best practices are to employ a Zero Trust Architecture ("ZTA") to the company's systems to prevent unauthorized actors from gaining access.
